

The Miles To Go trio

The Miles To Go trio is the compact version of David Hyams and the Miles to Go band, one of Western Australia's classiest folk/roots acts, which recently received its 8th nomination for "Best World Music Act" at the WA Music Industry's "WAMi" awards. The line up features David Hyams on guitar mandolin and vocals, joined by innovative string players Melanie Robinson (cello) and Melbourne based fiddle-singer Jenny M Thomas (recently described by fROOTS magazine (UK) as "like no other violinist on the planet").

The trio's sound is shaped by new songs which add country-blues tinges to the celtic infused mix, while continuing the exploration of places and stories from Australia's vast landscape - from the stunning night sky of the Kimberley and the north's oceans of wilderness, to winding southern coastal tracks...

In 2010 the trio made their first international foray, with a tour to the USA, around the International Folk Alliance convention in Memphis, Tennessee. In 2012 recording commenced on a new album, a strong feature of which is the cello and fiddle as well as sweet backing vocals from Jenny and Melanie. Extensive touring of the release is planned for 2013.
